Choosing Career

What do you want to be? This question must have taken you to a world of fantasies. As a child, you must have imagined yourself as a pilot soaring in the sky, a doctor striving to save humanity, a detective solving a crime. Later in your life, you may have wanted to emulate those who inspire you, for instance, a famous actor, a genius scientist, or a brilliant sportsperson. However, now, the answer to this question is not an idealistic or speculative musing but a vital issue to ponder on. It is time to choose a career where, you think, lies your future growth, the realization of your aspiration, fulfilment of your personality, and most importantly- the prospects of your productivity, satisfaction, and happiness.

Before embarking on a journey to choose a career, it is essential to understand the difference between a job and a career. Though jobs and careers are considered synonymous and interchangeable, there is a subtle difference between the two. A career is not merely a job; there is much more to it. A job is the work one does to earn money. It may be full-time to make a living or part-time to support a student during the academic term. It is a short-term strategy and does not necessarily require a professional degree or future planning. On the other hand, a career is a long-term journey based on one's passions, future growth, and personal advancement. For a career, one needs a certain level of education, a professional degree, or, at least, a definite skill set.

The first thing you should do while choosing a career is to make sure it interests you - something which brings you satisfaction and happiness. You will be more successful, fulfilled, and productive if you are enthusiastic about your chosen path. If you feel you are passionate about science or fashion designing or literature or astronomy or business, then opt for it without caring what others choose. Many students choose a particular field based on prevailing social trends, the insistence of family, peer pressure, or lack of information about other choices, not because of their genuine interest in that field. Ultimately, after some time, they find no motivation to continue. In the long run, this lack of motivation leads to dissatisfaction and negative emotional experience. Every field offers potential growth, success, and satisfaction if you excel in it by putting your heart and soul into it.

Your personality type and your values also determine the choice of career. Everyone has certain personal values which mould his or her preferences. For some, it is independence, and for others, it is recognition or leadership. Some wish to help humanity, and others desire intellectual, scientific, or artistic achievements. Your career decision should correspond and complement your values, suiting and matching your personality type. For example, an extroverted person finds a social, customer-oriented workplace more appealing. In contrast, an introverted person may be more at ease in a career that requires less social interaction and more independent analytical tasks. Engineering may be a good field for someone who likes to do practical work in the field.

The next step in your pursuit to choose your career is to identify your strengths and weaknesses. It is essential to know if you possess the required skills to pursue your preferred career. For example, you may like computer science and want to make a career in it, but the study of computational algorithms necessitates solid and logical skills. Similarly, good knowledge of accounting is needed if you aspire to be a chartered accountant. Likewise, if you are interested in the visual arts, you should be creative and artistic - attributes that can be displayed through your work. You may choose a career only when you are sure that you possess the required skill or you will be able to master the needed skills. There are many aptitude tests available online that can help you to reach a suitable decision. Make sure that your abilities and interests are compatible with your intended career path.

Unit 9.1 READING COMPREHENSION

Sometimes, we have a very idealistic and unattainable perception of our dream career. Therefore, it is always helpful to talk to someone who has experience in the career you want to pursue. By consulting a veteran of the field, you may gain valuable insight into the particular field's expectations, procedures, difficulties, and rewards. For instance, if you are interested in pursuing a career in academia, then it would be appropriate to approach your teacher to guide you towards your intended path. He or she may be able to tell you about the institutions, processes, and some helpful tips to achieve your goal. Talk to an army officer or visit a recruitment centre to know more about life in the forces and the demanding selection criteria if you dream of joining the military. If possible, attend career counselling seminars or seek the help of a professional career counsellor. He or she may not only be able to help you to choose your career but may also guide you through the admission process with suggestions for suitable institutions, methods to obtain scholarships or inform you of the eligibility criteria of financial aid if need be.

Most of the careers require a university degree and an extensive period of studying or training. It is always wise to know about the admission criteria of various institutions that offer such degrees. Nowadays, almost every university has a functional website where detailed admission-related information is available. Most of the universities conduct their entrance test, but some also accept the SAT score. Visit the websites of different universities to familiarize yourself with the format and content of the test. For example, if you want to be a doctor, you should know the test format for admission to medical universities. It is advisable to prepare for the test subjects before taking them. Visit libraries or search on the internet for the books and relevant material for preparation. Take mock tests offered by many websites to identify priority areas you need to work upon. Finding your dream career is not merely a wish, but it requires hard work, commitment, and the right attitude.

However, sometimes, despite our genuine efforts, we are unable to achieve our goals. It is also necessary to remain realistic about other potential opportunities and have a backup plan. This does not mean giving up on your dreams. Instead, it simply means to have a serious retrospection, and if required, redesign your goals. It also means reviewing your strategy and making an effort with new vigour, more experienced, and first-hand insight. Life is a sea of opportunities; explore these opportunities until you find the one that suits you.

Every individual has an untapped and undiscovered talent; each one of you has the potential to grow. You only have to identify the field or career where you can successfully optimize your true potential. Not everyone is destined for the same career or the same path. There are roads less travelled by, a thousand different paths to choose from. Have faith in yourself, have a clear vision of your future, put yourself through an honest assessment, and strive with the help of an unwavering dedication towards your work. If you have all these things, then the world is yours to seize, and all the people are waiting for you to shine.

9.4 GRAMMAR

a. Conditional Sentences Type-II

You have already learnt about conditional sentences type-I in your previous classes. Now, let us learn about conditional sentences type-II. Conditional sentences type-II is a structure used for talking about unreal situations in the present or in the future. In these sentences, the time is now or any time, and the situation is unreal. They are not based on fact, and they refer to an unlikely or hypothetical condition and its probable result. The use of the past tense after 'if' indicates unreality. For example: If the weather wasn't so bad, we would go to the park.

The structure of conditional sentences type-II can be formed by the following way:

If Clause	Main Clause
If + simple past tense	S+ could/ would/ might+V (I)+O
If this thing happened	that thing would happen
If it rained,	you would get wet
Example:
If it rained, you would get wet

Note: The sentence can begin with an 'if' clause or a main clause. If the sentence begins with an 'if clause', put a comma between the 'if' clause and the main clause.

• If + past tense (,) present unreal conditional (would/ could/ might)

Example:

• If I went to Paris, I would see the Eiffel Tower.

OR

I would see the Eiffel Tower if I went to Paris.

Note: In 'If Clauses Type 2', we usually use 'were' which is past form of 'to be' instead of 'was' although the pronoun is 'I, he, she or it'.

Examples:

- If I were you, I wouldn't marry with him.
- If she were ill, she couldn't attend the meeting.
- If it weren't snowy, I would go out.

Exercise 1

The following paragraph is on 'Unsustainable Environment'. Work in group of three. Each group is required to write a paragraph proposing solutions to this issue. After completing, exchange your paragraphs to the other group.

Fish is one of the Pakistan's favourite foods. In Pakistan, the average person eats 36 pounds (16 kg) of fish every year. But many kinds of fish in the River are disappearing because people and poachers catch too many of them. Environmentalists say that 90 percent of the biggest fish are gone now from the River Indus. If we catch too many big fish now, there won't be any baby fish in the future. Our way of fishing now is not sustainable -- it can't continue for a long time without hurting the environment.

Exercise 2

- i. Now, read the paragraphs and identify the type of sentence structure your class fellows have used.
- ii. Identify the situation from the following option in which the responses were used.
  - a. impossible condition in the past and its impossible result in the past
  - b. unlikely and hypothetical situation with probable result
  - c. possible condition with possible result

Exercise 3

Write short paragraphs on the following topics by following the pattern of conditional type-II structures.

- If you were chairman of the Union Council of your area....
- If you were elected the Prime Minister of Pakistan...
- If you were the Principal of your college....

Note for teacher: Make sure that the students understand clearly that conditional sentences have two clauses. One clause has 'if' and the other clause usually has 'would'. One clause tells us what will happen and the other clause tells us the result of the first action, i.e. what is second thing that will happen if the first one happens.

Punctuation: Square Brackets

The square brackets are used to modify another person's words which were not originally said by him. This modification is made mostly by an editor.

Examples:

The Officer inquired: "Where and when did it [the robbery]

take place?"

The witness answered: The robbery took place at a bank [The Reserved Bank yesterday.

Here are some rules of using square brackets.

• [sic] is used to spot any grammar mistake made by the original writer.

Example:

The mister believed that his statement was appropriate and did not undermine the moral [sic] of the party workers.

• Brackets with ellipsis [...] the three dots can be used to show text omitted from a quotation

Example:

Mrs. Nishat Khan is the only genius [...] with an IQ 60.

Exercise 4

Now, work in pairs and use the square brackets where required in the following paragraph. After completing, compare it with your partner.

"He Kasona was born in 1971. At that time, Namibia a poor country has many problems. The country was at war 1966 to 1990. Because of the fighting, many indigenous the Namibians had rifles which caused a problem poaching. During that time, poachers killed many wild animals black rhinos for their horns for their valuable body parts. To make things even worse around 1980 a terrible drought killed life people, livestock, and wildlife. By 1995, there were only few wild animals lions and cheetahs left in the Kunene region in the northwest of the country"

Note for teacher: Divide students in pairs and make them practise the use of square brackets by doing exercises. Next, assist and guide them while doing above exercises.

Vocabulary
